

Recording Consents — Staff Guide

This is a quick, click-by-click guide for front-desk and clinical staff on how to record a patient's consent with the Consent Capture plugin, right from the patient's chart. No setup knowledge needed. If you can open a patient chart, you can do this.

What this covers: opening the Consents window, recording a consent, handling a signed paper ("Written") consent, viewing a consent already on file, and renewing an expired one.

This guide is for the people recording consents. If you're the administrator setting the plugin up (credentials, which consents exist, wording), see SETUP_GUIDE.md.

The screenshots of the consent window below use sample data for illustration. Your practice's consents, wording, and patient details will look different.

1. Opening the Consents window

Open the patient's chart. There are two ways to open Consents, plus one reminder:

- "Consents" button at the top of the chart. It's always there; it's red when the patient still needs a required consent and a neutral gray once everything required is on file. Click it either way to open Consents.
- "Consents" in the chart app drawer. This is always there, even when nothing is outstanding, so you can record an optional consent or look up what's on file any time.
- Red banner reading "Required consent not on file." This is a reminder, not a button. It tells you the patient owes a required consent. Use the red button or the app drawer to open Consents. The banner clears on its own once the required consent is recorded.

If the patient is inactive or deceased, the button stays gray (never red) and the banner won't show. You can still open Consents from the button or the app drawer.

2. The Consents window (the "hub")

When Consents opens, you'll see the patient's consents sorted into up to three groups. Each row shows the consent name, a colored status tag, and a › arrow.

- Required — consents the patient must have. Tags you'll see:
 - Needed (red) — never recorded. Record it.
 - Renew (amber) — was recorded but has expired. The row shows when it expired.
- Optional — consents you can record but aren't required. Tags: Optional, or Renew if a previous one expired. (This group is collapsed when something is required — click the heading to expand it.)
- On File — the patient's consent history. Tags: On file (green) or Expired (amber). Each row shows the effective date and expiration (or "No expiration"). Clicking one opens the recorded document (see section 6). This group includes consents recorded elsewhere, not just ones you record here.

3. Recording a consent (the normal flow)

After you click a consent, a short two-step wizard opens. The steps are shown at the top: Review → Finalize.

Step 1 — Review

You'll see the consent's wording. Read it with the patient. When you're ready, click Continue. (To go back to the list, click Cancel.)

Step 2 — Finalize

Depending on how this consent is set up, you may see some or all of the following. Fill in what's shown:

1. How is the consent being obtained? — pick one: Verbal, Electronic, Written, or Other (only the options your practice enabled appear). If you pick Written, a note tells you that you'll add the signed form on the next step (see section 4).
2. Who is giving consent? — Patient or Representative. If you pick Representative, enter their full name and their relationship to the patient (for example: parent, healthcare proxy). Both are required.
3. Capacity attestation — if this consent requires it, you'll see a statement — "The patient has the capacity for decision-making." (or, for a representative, "The representative has the authority for decision-making.") — with Yes / No buttons. Yes is pre-selected; leave it on Yes to attest. Selecting No shows a notice and blocks recording until capacity is confirmed.
4. Questions — answer any questions shown (Yes/No, a confirmation checkbox, or a short typed answer). Some questions are required. If a question must be answered Yes and you answer No, a warning appears and the consent can't be recorded. (Questions do not appear for Written consents — the signed form is the record.)
5. Effective date — defaults to today. Change it only if the consent was given on a different day.

The consent now appears under On File, and if it was the last required one, the button turns from red to gray and the banner clears on their own.

4. Recording a "Written" (signed paper) consent

If you chose Written as the method, no on-screen questions are asked (the signed form is the record). Clicking Continue takes you to a Document step so you can attach the signed form. You can use the device camera or upload a file.

At the top you'll see two tabs: Camera and Upload.

Option A — Camera

1. On the Camera tab, point the camera at the signed page.
2. Tap the round shutter button to take the photo.

When the pages look right, tap Record Consent. The plugin assembles them into one document, files it, and shows the Consent Recorded screen.

5. Renewing an expired consent

A consent tagged Renew (amber) has expired and needs to be recaptured.

1. Open Consents and click the consent tagged Renew (under Required or Optional).
2. Record it exactly like a normal consent (sections 3–4).

The new consent replaces the expired one under On File.

6. Viewing a consent that's already on file

1. Open Consents.
2. Under On File, click the consent you want to see.
3. The recorded document opens in a viewer. Click Back to return to the list, or the X to close.

Some consents on file may have been recorded elsewhere in Canvas. They still show here so you have the full picture. If a row has no attached document, the viewer will say so.

Good to know

- One record per consent type. Recording a consent again (a renewal, or a correction) replaces the previous one for that consent. The patient won't end up with duplicates.

- The button color and banner are automatic. The button turns red (and the banner appears) when a required consent is missing, and both clear once it's recorded — the button stays as a neutral gray entry point. You don't turn them off.
- The person recording is you. The consent is filed under your signed-in Canvas account, so you don't enter your own name anywhere.

If something goes wrong

What you see	What to do
"Record Consent" is greyed out	Answer all required questions and confirm the capacity attestation if one is shown. If a representative is giving consent, fill in their name and relationship. If a question must be Yes, it can't be recorded on No.
"Please select how the consent was obtained"	Choose a method (Verbal / Electronic / Written / Other) before recording.
"Could not reach the server" / "Could not record consent"	Try again. If it keeps happening, tell your administrator (it may be a configuration issue).
Camera is blocked or unavailable (Written consents)	Use the Upload tab instead.
A consent you expected isn't in the list to record	It may be hidden by your administrator. Ask them to enable it in Consent Settings.
The document won't open from On File	That consent may not have an attached file, or it was recorded without one. The viewer will tell you.
